Overview - Call of Duty MobileBest Photo and Gallery App - 1GalleryBest Video Streaming App - NetflixBest News App - FlipboardBest Note-Taking App - Google KeepBest Productivity App - Whatever VPN.doBest App – Cloud Private Internet AccessBest Storage App – Google DriveBest Shopping App – Microsoft Edge Best Team Chat App (With Honey)– SlackBest Fitness App – Google Fit Best Overall Mobile Game – Call of Duty Mobile Call of Duty : Mobile broke records by reaching 100 million downloads in the first week. No surprise when you break it down. Call of Duty: Mobile is the first true smartphone remake of Call of Duty, the world’s most popular first-person shooter game. There have been many mobile Call of Duty games before this, but nothing comes close to replication of what the console version does. Look forward to classic maps, traditional game modes like team deathmatch and search and destroy, and other hits like zombies and battle royale. Piggybacking from what makes PUBG mobile so popular around the world, Call of Duty: Mobile has impressive 3D graphics and intuitive touch controls for anyone to play. It’s easy to overcome the game and jump into action. But various game modes and progress systems will bring players back, perhaps even more so than PUBG Mobile. Best Photos & Gallery App - 1Gallery 1Gallery is a great new gallery app released for Android in 2019 that you can use to edit photos, videos, view your past memories, and also keep your media a good. The highlight feature of 1Gallery is that you can hide photos and folders and lock them behind your PIN, password, or fingerprint ID. All hidden content in 1Gallery is encrypted so your files must be safe from being seen by others as long as you don’t enable any cloud backup services. 1Gallery has some basic photo editing tools to let you crop, rotate, or add filters to your photos. You can also trim a video to cut content. There are many more available in 1Gallery, such as light and dark themes, and file support for RAW, SVG, and more. Best Video Streaming App - Netflix The TV and movie streaming space has some big names in it, but Netflix, the forerunner of the niche, is still in the lead. Netflix has reinvested its large earnings to title after the exclusive content title. Of course, both Amazon Prime, HBO, and even Disney+ do the same, but Netflix has been doing it longer and they’ve built an excellent selection of shows. Netflix also invests in regional content, so whether you’re from the US, UK, South Korea, or elsewhere, you can expect to find either from third-party sources or from exclusive Netflix content. The Netflix app is also very well designed and easy to search, favorite, and even download your favorite content. Best News App – Flipboard When Flipboard first grew into a success, it was an innovative app. Flipboard may now show its age, having launched 10 years ago, but it still has one of the best systems for curating your own news experience. With Flipboard you can choose an interesting area and the app will give you a mix of curated content from the editor and automatically suggested content through flipboard algorithms. As you use Flipboard more, you can actually invest more time in turning apps into your own personal newsroom. You can create a personal magazine to include your favorite sources for a specific theme. For example, it is possible to create a magazine for esports, and another for, say, golf. Best Note Taking App - Google Keep There are many powerful note-taking apps on Android, but Google Keep stands out for its convenience. Taking notes is about being able to doodling thoughts and plans as quickly as possible, but taking notes should improve that application by making sure your notes are completely legible in the future and easy to find through search. That’s why Google Keep earned a place here in our collection of Android 2019 apps. Just open the app, tap the plus button and your new notes are created. From here you have controls for quickly adding images, text, photos, sound recordings, or checkboxes. With Google Keep having Google’s power behind it, these simple features are amplified. For example, your voice recording is transcribed and you’ll get a full-text version for next to it. This makes searching for specific voice notes easy. You can organize notes into different categories, share them with others, and even transcribe text from photos. And, by being tied to your Google account, all notes sync with any device you access to Google Keep. Best Productivity App - Any do When you need more than just a note-taking app, you Any do do it perfectly. It starts with making a small note for something you need to do. For example, buy a birthday present. From there, you can start creating slots in more tasks, setting deadlines, and syncing all your tasks with your calendar. Any do has great integration with other apps as well. You can use Alexa or the Google Assistant to schedule handshake-free tasks. You can also create tasks and set reminders on WhatsApp. You can also sign in to your Google profile and sync everything with all that you use, making it easier to stay organized and productive throughout the day, every day. Best VPN Apps - Private Internet Access There are many free VPNs, but we have chosen VPNs with paid subscriptions. More specifically, VPN apps that we can trust. When you connect to a VPN, you send all your data through a third-party server, which means you have to trust that third party. Lots of free VPN apps, and even some will keep a log of your data, and often state in their terms that they can send the data to third-party vendors. This is more of a threat to your privacy than not using a VPN at all. Private Internet Access doesn’t store logs about you and using a VPN for new Netflix content works wonders like no one else. With PIA, you can switch locations to up to 33 countries, and set exceptions or inclusions for VPNs on a per-app basis. Private Internet Access also has unlimited bandwidth for users at a reasonable price – $9.99 per month, or $74.99/year. Best Cloud Storage App – Google Drive With your Android phone, you’ll find it hard not to use your Google account, especially as far as sync is concerned. So it’s no surprise that we recommend Google Drive as the best cloud storage option on Android. All accounts get 15GB of storage for free, you get built-in Google Docs, Sheets, and Slides. You can store anything in Google Drive, from important documents to memorable movies and photos. Although, we recommend downloading Google Photos for the latter to take advantage of their unlimited photo storage. Google’s powerful search feature is also useful in Google Drive for finding specific files. When it came to backups, everything syncs through your Google account, so you can set up automatic backups for files and photos. Best Shopping Apps – Microsoft Edge (With Honey) We’ve voted Microsoft Edge the best shopping app in 2019 because it now comes with built-in Honey integration. Honey is an app that can automatically apply coupon codes at checkout to hundreds of different websites. This way, you can shop for what you like online and hopefully find a better deal. Too bad it doesn’t have a standalone Android app yet, but we kinda like it that way. The standalone Apple app is a bit of a mess. This forces you to go through the app to buy stuff, and you have to deal with Honey directly when it comes to making orders. In contrast, honey integration in Microsoft Edge reflects honey desktop extensions. To turn it on, go to settings in Microsoft Edge, tap the coupon and choose to enable Honey. Best Team Chat App - Slack Microsoft Teams is a close runner up, but for us Slack is still the best choice for collaborating with others, managing chats between a large group of users, and keeping track of everything that matters. One of the main problems with chat apps is that not everyone will be online to see every message, so chat apps need to have a powerful search feature so users can catch up when they are next online. Search engines Very strong. You can search by time limit, for example, messages between very specific time periods or dates. You can search messages that contain specific words, search within a specific channel for a specific phrase, or well, learn more about slack’s search tool here. Slack also has great support for app integration, making it easier to manage tasks through third-party platforms such as Trello, Google Google and Zendesk. You can direct a message or contact a member on your Slack team or send a message notifying them in the chat @commands well. Best Fitness App – Google Fit One of the reasons Google apps get so high ratings is because Google doesn’t try to sell extra features with their apps – they just want to improve the user experience on their stock Android operating system. This means Google Fit, like many other apps from Google, is filled with features for free. Google Fit has all the typical things you’d expect, including a step counter, an exercise tracker for running and cycling, and further workout tracking when using an Android smartwatch. But Google Fit also has a redesigned new focus just to keep moving. You are given a minute’s note of the move, which tracks every time you do simple things like walking down the stairs or getting up from your office to get a coffee. You also get heart points that track every time you do a minute of moderate activity. With these features, you can focus on being more active when you can’t exercise, as well as get motivated to exercise when you have more free time. That summary takes us to the end of our best Android app roundup. This list serves to show you the best Android has to offer in a number of different categories, but if you think we’re missing something, feel free to reach out to us. We.
